

Setter is a new range of dining chairs designed by David Irwin and manufactured by Deadgood.

Produced in a lacquered timber with the possibilities of a 'hard' or 'soft' seat and back rest, Setter is designed with comfort in mind.

Compound angles to the rear provide some subtle Mid-Century inspired detailing, whilst the curve on the back rest doubles up as an arm rest, the profile of which bears reference to that of a dog's head: an off-the-wall reference and inspiration for the name
