The Pavilion counter stool boasts a gentle curvature of the veneer seat and back echoed in the lyrical lines of the steel legs. The effect is a light, graceful silhouette that's a welcome addition to any commercial venue or private home. Perfect for furnishing a restaurant, hotel or bar without crowding the space. Whether placed in a row or around a counter, the Pavilion bar and counter stools have a poetic presence. In a design that feels light and barely there.

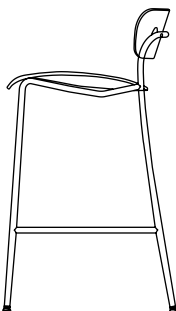

The name Pavilion is a reference to the Langelinie Pavilion on the Copenhagen waterfront, formerly home to the Royal Danish Yacht Club. It was rebuilt in the 1950s as a multi-functional venue in an architectural style reflecting the modernist movement at the time. It was the initial inspiration for the first design in this series, the Pavilion chair.

With the Pavilion counter stool, Anderssen & Voll have succeeded in creating a graceful design that partners bent plywood with bent tubing. In doing so, they honour aspects of modernism from the past in an elegant counter stool with a promising future.
