“In a world where everyone is rushing around mega multi-tasking, to sit at an ordinary desk feels so static,” says Spanish artist / designer Jaime Hayon. “I felt compelled to design a desk with a feeling of motion, inspired by the kinetic sculptures of Alexander Calder. Balancing various shapes and materials at various heights supported by a metal frame. In theory it’s like a mobile but in reality it’s a desk.”

Each Palette desk partners two shapes together: an elongated bean shape with a simple round shape. Adding to the cohesive effect of the design is the choice of elegant materials, such as the option of walnut or black ash together with black marble and brass. A compelling mix of the warmth of wood, the natural pattern and regal appeal of marble and the satin polished brass. Materials that both contrast and compliment each other in a table that instantly signals exclusivity.
